Copyright © 2021 InfoSpace Holdings, LLC, system1 came across via this very cool press release this morning by SaveUp.com (right stranger? press release being cool? :)), and thought it had made for some perfect Today. Small pieces of ADD candy for us to fund nerds, if that's true. Here were fast food: generation X (born 1965-1980) &lt; -- where it fell, unfortunately. Average mortgage debt: $181,706 (over 21% above u.S. average) Average student loan debt: $44,270 (82.2% higher than U.S. average) Average credit card debt: $8,801 (more than 22% higher than U.S. average) Generation Y (born 1981-19) 95) Average mortgage debt: $161,000 + (7.5% above u.S. average) Average student loan debt: $40,273 (65.7% higher than u.S. average) Average credit card debt: $4,113 (42.8% below the U.S. average) kinda interesting, eh? It makes sense that Gen X would be more of a mortgage debt than just others' cuz we're all a bunch of oldies out there and maybe work on our 2 or 3 home upgrade by now, but student loan debt? Why is this so much more than General Y people? We've had tons more time to pay for it! Unless General Wye isn't interested in college anymore? You will also notice that our credit card debt is doubling what Gen Y is too. Which we are referring to after more time on this earth to entertain everything :) With all our children and our cars and our responsibilities now but still, we should use our time to clear everything up instead of adding it more, ugh... Time is one of the best tools that grow our net value! The other thing noted in this savings and debt report was that only 32% of us general Xers even invested and saving for retirement to begin with - wow this is low. Even if this 32% represents approximately 82% of the total savings from the Gen X crowd that follow SSaveUp. Then again all these numbers come from 20,000 representative samples of their user base, so ofcourse it's going to be somewhat skewed. I don't know a lot of people in their 40s taking advantage of online technology like younger crowds... But yes, here you are. Generation Y kills generation x in every single category :) Here's how I compare with my profiles in those 3 areas: Average Mortgage Debt: $181,706 / C. Real Estate Debt Money: $311,411 Average Student Loan Debt: $44,270/J. Money Student Loan Debt: $0.00 Average Credit Card Debt: $8,801 / Credit Card Debt J. Money: $0.00 Two out of Three Is Not Bad! Haha... Damn stimulated by the decision of the moment. Where are you comparing here? Are you a member of any generations outside of X-10 and Y? How do we come we haven't heard any financial stats on you guys? If you ever come across the shot 'em more. I'm tired of us :) You have an exciting day y'all. ----- -- {Photo Robert Banh} Jay likes to talk about money, collect coins, blow up hip-hop, and hang out with his three beautiful children. X-Rays XR TB (Drug-Resistant TB) Other X-Rays A-Z In HHS content created by the Digital Communications Division (DCD)Content last review on October 29, 2014 content created by the Digital Communications Division (DCD) content last review on October 29, 2014 here will show how to make laser sound. First I have two videos for you. I've accomplished with a laser show program for McC (it is also possible with a frequency generator program) and cool music effects. The vibrations of the 2 base speakers (with 1 mirror per speaker) makes the laser move with music and frequencies (sound). Hotgluepistole laser 2x base speaker 2x mirrors (1.5cm x 1.5cm) and borde (wood) straw 2x plastic pices (1mm thick) wooden stix (p.ex. Mikado stix) styropohrFix mirrors as on pocturs on and cut struts. I saw the plastic pictures. (So fit the size of the speakers) here you have glue mirror images on the speakers. It is very important that one mirror unit is placed in a vertical position and another horizontal unit. Now we're almost finished. I have glued speakers on pice of wood and I settle with styropohr block. (Image) I simply put the laser in the styropohr block. (Image) This styropoheblock must be about the same size as the speakers and the hole should be at the level of mirrors. Now you are an amateur maid of your x Y lasershow sound! If you have problems or questions just whrite me PM. Can you choose a name for the successor of iPhone X? Since it turns out that all the oled iPhone screen will actually be called the iPhone X (Ten), just as rumored, we can't help but wonder how the label scheme of Apple's new iPhone bezel line will continue. Needless to say, since X stands for ten, Apple is using Roman numerals to denote a new wallet, and the most logical name for the successor to the ultimate iPhone X is the iPhone XI. However, Apple may decide to bring the current surfboard iPhone design like 8 and 8 Plus, in the lower frame fold frame by releasing two phones on the screen with different display diameters next year, those may be the iPhone 9 and iPhone 11, since 10 already do and flick, Romanian numbers or not. That would leave Apple with the iPhone 9/11 range, however, which is not the most acceptable combo one can unveil in September. Even more elusive would be if Apple turns to characters, rather than numbers for the iPhone in the future. I wonder the next less frame gets called iPhone Y. Odds, odds, tell us which one you will choose, and sound off your prediction arguments in the comments below. Are there other options you can think of? Subscribe to our newsletter! PeopleImages/Getty Images Parabola is a visual representation of square function. Each parabola has an y-intercept, the point at which the y axis crosses. The function and equation of the square function benjaminec / Getty Images find a y-intercept of parabola can be deceptive. Although the y-intercept is hidden, it already exists. Use the function equation to find the y. y = 12x2 = 48x + 49 y-intercept has two parts: x value and y value. So, connect zero to x and a solution for y: y = 12 (0)2 + 48 (0) + 49 (replacing x by 0.) y = 12 * 0 + 0 + 49 (simplification) y = 0 + 0 + 49 (simplification) y = 49 (simplification) y (x49) y intersection (0, 49). Ulrike Schmitt-Hartmann / Getty Images Find y-intercept of y = 4x2 - 3x using the following steps: y = 4 (0)2 - 3 (0, 0) (replacing x x 0.) y = 4* 0 - 0 (simplification) =0 -0 (simplification) y = 0 (simplification) y (xx). Offering modern designer sportswear in edgy, urban space, this is the first in the y3 boutique nation to feel right at home in the modern excavations of the design area. Y3 began as a famous sneaker (and always sold) by Adass has now expanded to include bags and clothing besides shoes. Yohji Yamamoto is renowned for its Japanese style blended with its edge, turning standard polo, t-shirts and shorts into pieces of clothing. Miami Y-3 (like the clothes itself) features clean lines and monochrome colors along with unexpected bursts of color. Color.
