City of scottsdale bulk trash pickup dates

Great job everyone! The question wednesday of this week's trivial waste was What do you think is the right way to dispose of cooking oil? your options were: (place it to collect, in a labeled container, for brush and bulk service) (bag and tie baking oil container and Unwanted cooker and put it in your black trash can) (whether it uses the city's hazardous garbage collection program) (dig a hole in the back yard, pour oil in the hole, and cover it up) the answer is.... Have it collected using the city's dangerous garbage collection app! Bag and close your unwanted cooking oil and put it in your black trash can sounds like the right thing to do but the reality is, all our garbage trucks are compact garbage or recycled. Oil containers can be torn down and leaked from trucks leaving a mess on the road. The same goes for our bulk/brush application. Our drivers do not collect cooking oil for this reason. Pouring unwanted cooking oil into a hole in your yard is never a good idea so please do so. Thank you all for participating in this week's Garbage Trivia Wednesday. Please feel free to comment or ask questions in relation to this below. Thanks to 11 5 responses you finally decided to bid goodbye interested in those old ratty benches, recliner, mattresses, household appliances or other household bulk waste items. However, it clearly can't fit in your standard waste and you probably don't want to borrow or rent a truck to transport it to a landfill (or maybe you own a truck but don't want at any cost). Fortunately, most valley towns offer bulk garbage collection. It allows you to throw your bigger unwanted items outside and let someone else transport them. Comfortable! Of course, before you start throwing junk at the curb, you need to know when your city will gather, what it collects and how much it will cost you. We collect basic information for you, and include links for details. Chandler Chandler provides free bulk waste collection for residents who already pay for solid waste collection. Pickups can happen up to every six weeks per accommodation, but you should call 480-782-3510 to schedule a pickup - the city does not schedule pickups by email or third parties. You can also call that number for disposal alternatives if you don't pay for solid waste collection. Note that when you plan a pickup, you have to tell the city what items are involved so the truck sends the correct collection. There will be items approved for collection including flattened cardboard, baggy yard waste, household appliances ($10 from removal fee for refrigerators, air conditioning units, etc.) and small electronics including computers, TCs and monitors. Use disposal of construction materials, auto parts, dirt, or hazardous items. Be aware that you can't put any items until you plan a pickup, otherwise Can get a fine.
