Equipment for ultimate frisbee

Do you have the right Ultimate Frisbee gear? You'll be surprised how many people going out of the pitch aren't properly equipped, and you'll be surprised to know how much difference some decent equipment makes when you play Ultimate. Yes, some players will wear nice friction gloves but the bricks will want to. Some will wear high quality bricks but they will use a disc that is either too light or too heavy. At the end of the day, you won't perform at your best during the Frisbee game, if your equipment is missing. Imagine driving exceptionally well, thanks to some decent bricks, only to be held back by a bad Frisbee who doesn't fly straight. Or imagine receiving the perfect throw, only to be limited by bad bricks when you try to jump and catch it. It is common sense that investing in the best gear will get you the best performance during the game. Not only will you be more efficient, but you will also have more fun playing when you are properly equipped. So if you're serious about Ultimate Frisbee, you should definitely check out the following basic gear. Basic Gear you need for Ultimate Frisbee There's a lot going on in an Ultimate game. You can certainly play the game with minimal equipment. But there are at least 3 basic things you need if you are serious about it. You'll need a good quality disc, a decent pair of bricks and a pair of good friction gloves to improve your grip when trying to catch frisbee. We wrote in-depth guides on all of these on our site, but for now we will focus on the top 3 from each category. So without further ado, here's the basic Ultimate Frisbee Gear List: Frisbee Discs Cleats Friction Gloves Bags & Backpacks Ultimate Frisbee Discs It's important to have a good Ultimate Frisbee disc if a beginner or an experienced player. Why? Well because good, reliable discs retain the best flight consistency, feel right when you grip, and aren't too heavy or too light. A good disc should be resistant to breakage, cracking or warping, as it will constantly fall on the ground, hit objects, or even get trampled on mistakes. If you chose to play Frisbee at night, you can get a disc that can be seen even in poorly lit areas. For this, some discs come with LED lighting. The disc you choose is an important part of ultimate frisbee gear. The official recommended weight of the disc is 175 grams and you will find many products that match specifications. But in our opinion, some of the best frisbees out there are as follows: 1.
