Congruent triangles worksheet b answer key

All children are born artists. The problem is how to stay an artist as you grow up. Pablo Picasso The little ones are very familiar with drawing very soon! Once they have passed the period of the first doodle, they perfect their mastery of movements and their fine motor skills, all while developing in parallel their sense of observation. Does your child show any real interest in drawing? Do you discuss the idea that you attend private painting courses to improve your technique? Although arts education in Mexico is taught in schools and for some years has been increasingly important in teaching programs, the truth is that betting on private lessons is an excellent idea so that the little one in the house can develop all his skills. All this without forgetting that when doing this type of post-school activity you will have the opportunity to enjoy a pleasant and relaxed time outside of school and all its obligations. You could also have an artist's soul and share your passion for drawing by teaching children's drawing lessons. Classes of this type are an interesting complement to the artistic teaching that is taught in kindergarten and elementary school. It is the ideal opportunity to strengthen a child's skills and give him the opportunity to unleash all his creativity. What is painting for children? Whether there is a child in the house who you think uses private drawing lessons or if you are thinking of launching yourself as a home teacher of this topic, it is important to review because it is essential that young people join the drawing and painting from an early age. First of all, it must be said that giving children the opportunity to express themselves through this type of language means allowing them to become more creative and free, while developing other skills that go far beyond artistic ones. Children of all ages can take home drawing classesDoes, studies that vary over time have shown that young people who do some such activity get better qualifications in Mathematics than those who have not had the opportunity to receive these lessons. But, if it is a matter of listing the main advantages that painting classes bring to the little ones in the house, we can not fail to mention the following: motor development. Painting lessons - both outside and inside the school - also help young people develop their coordination. Taking a pencil or brush for the first time to express themselves on a sheet or canvas, the beginners of the drawing are working their refined psychomotor from the first minute of class. Not for nothing, children who are drawing tends to learn to write faster than those who are not attracted to this type of artistic activity. Self esteem. It is proven that artistic activities, as well as sport, help to strengthen the self-esteem of young people. Just like when they manage to score a point in a sports competition, in the case of art classes, when they finish a work and are satisfied with the final result they can gain confidence in their skills and abilities. Something that can undoubtedly be moved to other fields such as academics and social relations. Expression of feelings. When kindergarten and elementary school students are tied to an artistic activity (such as painting and drawing), they begin to master the basics of a type of language that allows them to communicate differently, with their peers and adults, as well as freeing tensions and relaxation. As you can see, the importance of arts education in young people is undeniable. But in order for your child to make the most of this activity outside of class, it is essential that they have the follow-up of a private teacher with experience in the world of the arts and education. Don't hesitate to enter Superprof to investigate the offer of teachers near your home and look forbook of arts drawing courses Before continuing to talk to the lessons properly, the child must have acquired certain skills. Between drawing for pleasure and discovering basic drawing techniques, there are limits that will have to be differentiated! As Pablo Picasso said: Before the age of 6, the child draws as part of his games. This activity allows you to develop your motor skills and awaken your senses. The child practices this activity every day at school and at home. The painting or drawing workshop is not yet intended to faithfully represent a model. It remains a means of expression, but the child still does not have the cognitive skills necessary to learn to draw realistically, how to materialize his sense of observation. A preschool class is not the same as primary school children. Child-adapted drawing workshops are intended to awaken their imagination and creativity. It is also an opportunity to discover colors, space and start facing the movements of drawing. These are playful workshops in which the child can develop freely and fully. Often, while learning to read, children find a new favorite activity. Suddenly, they discover books, like so many other discoveries. By the way, some will tend to put the drawing aside to explore another universe: stories. If your child continues day by day with a pencil in his hand, it means that his passion is well anchored. From this moment on you can consider enrolling it as a pencil drawing course so you can learn the techniques and be able to start showing you the art world in all its aspects. How is a children's art classI know that drawing lessons lie adapt to the age of the child, but also to their level! For example, children between the ages of 6 and 10 do not have the same ability to concentrate as a teenager. Nor do they have the same maturity and perception of reality. Therefore, it is important to adapt the type of class, but also its duration. In any case, beyond technique, drawing classes have to deal with topics related to art. In fact, it's an ideal time for kids to discover the great artists of painting, illustrators, and even sculptors. ... as well as the different artistic currents! Collective lessons are particularly interesting for arts subjects. They facilitate exchanges, stimulate creativity and promote progression. Carrying out artistic activities helps to free tensions and stimulate creativityPainting courses for children between 6 and 11 years OldIn general, for primary school students, drawing lessons are divided into several parts, all related to the same theme (a work, a technique ...). There are many possibilities. In this way, the class can be divided into several distinct parts:Presentation of a work and discussion around its characteristics, Explanation of the technique for working and demonstrating, Drawing with the implementation of the technique studied. If at this age the works of great classical painters are difficult to lay precisely, it is very easy to draw inspiration from contemporary artists, or even abstract art, so that children can practice reproducing a drawing in which they are inspired. For example: the works of Keith Haring! Kids like their colors. So why not Matisse? If you want to learn how to draw without leaving the house, do not hesitate to look for an online drawing course in Superprof.Do want to discover other advantages of drawing lessons for children? Children's painting techniquesGenerally, children like to get dirty and be creative with paint and color.Like any skill, there are many ways to deepen this interest and develop a child's drawing and painting skills so that they feel comfortable exploring their creative side and perhaps even developing a passion for art! Knowing colorThe analysis of relationships between different colors is an important component when learning to paint. Less than 5 years old: you can crop images of cellophane in primary colors (red, yellow and blue). Then let the little one play with the shapes and see for yourself how each color interacts to create a new color. Ages 5 to 8: Introduce the idea of secondary colors by giving children primary colored paints and asking them to mix them in different ways and paint a drawing. Introduction to watercolorColor has existed for centuries and is one of the most popular techniques. It is also a great way to engage children in painting as it is fast, easy and can be used in addition to drawing and other types of paint. Under 5 years old: If your child or group likes to wear a pencil, try to go one step further and teach them how to hold a brush. Ages 5 to 8: At first it can be difficult to work with watercolors, so check out the simple pequeocio.com lessons, which are perfect for presenting children with the different ways they can create beautiful watercolors. Young children love to play with painting while learning. Acrylic painting lessonsConsidered as one of the most versatile types of paint, acrylic is perfect for helping children learn how to paint. Not only can it be easily diluted, but it can also be used to make bright and structured paints (it also dries very quickly!). Less than 5 years old: When it comes to acrylic, you can make some dazzling abstract paintings. Just place some paints (it is recommended to dilute them a little for use with younger children) and allow children to familiarize themselves with new textures, colors and how they all interact. From the age of 8: now could be the perfect time to start it in canvas work. Small canvases are cheap and turn your painting into an instant, hang-ready artwork. Portrait PaintingPainting About Life is one of the most challenging and rewarding skills an artist can learn. Less than 5 years old: with younger children, creating a portrait is about color, expression and imagination. Have the children create an image of a family member, pet or imaginary figure and let them go with paint and paper! 5 to 8 years old: All you need for this simple self-portrait activity is a mirror and some materials to paint. Preschool art activitiesAs you can imagine, preschoolers will have to start at the beginning... If you want to capture the attention of students of this age, you should strive to perform exercises that not only live up to their abilities, but also inspire them. In other words, if you cannot propose original and varied activities, the it doesn't take too long to want to go back to your parents. We are faced with a sensitive audience that will require all our attention. Painting activities for kindergartens is time to turn off the brush and encourage children to participate in some exciting new pictorial activities. This list of ideas will develop the learning of the little ones, having fun in the process. Painting with toy carFor this activity you will need some strollers. Have the child throw paint drops on a sheet of paper, then pass over the car above it, so that it experiments with different patterns and shapes. Rolling of mami on paper also creates interesting effects. Create gift card Children like activities that produce a final result. Then you can create a beautiful gift card to use for future birthdays by purchasing a paper roll and decorating it. The prints on your hands and feet work great or you can use some sponges, put it on top and then pass it on paper. Draw lines and shapes If your child likes to color, this activity will love it. Ask him to collect some interesting items from his home, then gently draw them with a pencil. Painting on stones will be a lot of fun. Rupente paintingFor this activity, you will need some rocks or large stones, preferably with a flat surface. Then look for some images on the Internet of cave paintings and then have the little one recreate a rock painting in his stone set, which he can store later. It's a great way to learn about history, while creating a unique art form. DripThis activity works great if you show the child some paintings by Jackson Pollock. Use the images as inspiration, then let him recreate a Pollock masterpiece, dripping and spraying paint on a canvas. Create a doubleBuy a large roll of paper and ask the little one to lie down on it and then draw. Before cutting the shape, paint inside the outline, adding as many details as possible. Recycled creationsFor preschoolers to blend with your classes, you can invite them to bring recyclable material from their homes. They can be cardboard containers, kitchen rolls or toilet paper, newspapers, among many others. All this waste that would normally end up in the trash can become the kick-off of 100% ecological artwork. If you need help in creating exercises in this direction, be sure to search YouTube. In accounts like Ideas in 5 Minutes and Crazy for DIY you'll find tips so your students' creations don't go unnoticed. Children's drawing exercises Through all these themes, children easily learn the basics in drawing and also to perfect your technique. Among the indispensable exercises that can not be missing from your online or domestic painting lessons for children, there are (depending on age): Linear drawing: Learning to draw shapes, drawing the contours of an object, respecting the proportions ... Perspective drawing: To switch from 2D drawing to 3D drawing, the teacher will transmit the essential techniques. It is an indispensable stage to master the art of realistic drawing. Techniques related to different tools: what tool for what support? To achieve what effect? Drawing lessons become the ideal opportunity to get to know all kinds of tools: acrylic paint, watery paints, oil, crayons, pastel, pen, charcoal, black stone ... Also discover the best online tools to learn how to draw. The effects of structure, shadow and light...How to give depth to the drawing and reproduce what you see? Here you learn to play with details to make faithful reproductions of reality, transmit an emotion or value an accurate element of the drawing. Draw taking into account the degrees of brightness and volume representation: How to play with volumes, light effects and make shapes appear thanks to the contrast created between them? An activity for perfection classes that needs good drawing bases. The little ones love to draw. First, drawing learning aims to fine-traits, develop mastery of movement, and acquire automation. The work then focuses on technical and specific aspects that allow children to discover new facets in the art of drawing. When you learn to draw, it's never over. New techniques are learned, sought after, everyone's style is seen, new inspirations are found... It's really an evolutionary passion. Without forgetting that for enthusiasts, this can direct them towards beautiful professional excursions. If you live in Mexico, be sure to look for the painting lessons available on the Superprof website, for example, in Mexico City you will find the courses here: drawing course. The profile of the children's painting teacherTo teach art to children, it is essential to be a good educator and very patient. The best artist will not be able to teach children if he does not have the ability to understand them and reach his level. Therefore, to teach children to draw is indispensable:That you like children and know how to attract their attention: teaching children is almost based on vocation: it is made for this... Or not! As soon as you teach your first preschool or elementary painting class, you'll find out if you have the skills to with this audience or it is better to specialize in another segment. Turning lessons into something playful: a presentation at the beginning of Cubism is certainly very interesting, but of course, unsportsmanlike suitable. Younger children will soon lose their attention if you start your classes only with the theory. Do not hesitate to intertwine historical data (such as the life of an artist) with practical exercises to test your skills ... from the first minute of the lesson! Adapting vocabulary: Although children need to be transmitted and taught drawing vocabulary, it's important to know how to explain concepts in a simple way. Otherwise, instead of feeling free during creation, they may have been blocked by not understanding the terms you set at the beginning of your class. Be thin: don't tell a child that his job is a disaster. You have to tell him he's okay, giving him advice to make it even better. This is the key so you don't lose interest in your classes and most importantly, so you don't get frustrated. The learning process of a child who is not stimulated when he is taking his first steps in an artistic discipline is doomed to failure. Be enthusiastic: to progress, children must be encouraged by their teacher. Faced with the backseam that may arise when they do not perform an exercise, the teacher will have to find the most appropriate words. And also cunning so that instead of throwing in the towel and leaving, the power artist discovers how to overcome the obstacles that take him out of his goal. To be an art teacher for kindergarten and elementary school you will need a lot of patience and creativity Without forgetting that drawing lessons, first of all, must be synonymous with pleasure! Therefore, you need to leave room for the imagination and creativity that children need to realize. It is a moment of détente, outside the school sphere, a different way in which they can discover their senses and abilities. In order for the drawing classes to be productive and a source of satisfaction, it is essential that the child volunteers and on initiative during the process. Children's painting lessons price Alive in Mexico and you are interested in drawing lessons, do not hesitate to consult the nearest art school or teachers available on the Superprof platform.Only so you can give yourself an idea: the average price of private paint school in Mexico is $181.Es important that as a parent, looking for such classes for your children, keep in mind that this value.
