Are you ready to go beyond random interview tips online and learn a system that will win you the killer job and salary you deserve? Do you need to be above the competition and get the insider knowledge that will make you shine as a top candidate? Our tested, step-by-step training platform to take control and learn exactly what hiring managers are asking for, sell yourself as a star candidate, let your nerves and anxiety go away, and interview and negotiate so you get paid what you're worth. Even if you only have a day to prepare, even if the position you want is ultra-competitive even if you don't crack a first phone interview I've featured in Forbes, ABC News, and CNN, written for the New York Times, and the Wall Street Journal even called me a guru in the world of job interviews. A few years ago I started Big Interview to provide the same training and tools I give to my elite clients during one-on-one coaching, to a larger group of performers. Forbes calls it one of the best websites for your career. What I've learned over decades of coaching individual clients and teaching hiring managers how to screen candidates is that there is a system for giving a winning interview. There is a way to take away all the ambiguity, the well-intentioned but incorrect advice from family and friends, the nerves, and instead concisely present yourself in a way that pushes the right buttons for a hiring manager. But try googling job application advice and see if you find something that matches. You'd probably find anecdotes about humorous answers to trick questions (try at your own risk), reminisce to bring a RESUME, and ask questions on the day of your interview, or a list of common job applications. But you won't find the practical exercise tools we've developed and tested with hundreds of thousands of users to help them win their job interviews with confidence. A guru in the world of job interviews My interview skills completely changed. I got so much better. I came into the interview and came into my dream business to do my dream job. Morgan I got the job! I accepted their offer last week. I went through two rounds of interviews and prepared a technical paper before being selected. I can say unequivocally that I would not even have made it past the first round without the help of this program. It's a great product and I thank you guys for making it. I definitely felt like I'd have a head start on someone who didn't use this tool to prepare. Morgan I would definitely recommend your product to anyone seriously looking for a I used it for every big interview I had and as a result it made me so much more confident going into the interview. Fantastic. David S. After you Hours clicking into the depths of LinkedIn jobs, stalking the Careers page of your dream business, sending hundreds of resumes (and maybe even throwing in some intense voodoo for good measure), the next step standing between you and your dream job might look one of two ways: You start your day already wired from a restless night of sleep and make a quick job interview today- wish me luck! post on social media. The radio is turned off during the commute - instead, you're totally attuned to all the nervous self-talk in your head (What if they ask about that gap in my resume? Will there be other people waiting to apply for the same job? Clumsy!). Before you leave the car, pause for a few deep breaths... but the momentary sense of calm is probably gone once you've set foot in this new, unfamiliar building. Once you've finally called for the interview, you smile through the nerves but are only half present - busy analyzing everything you say and noticing small details in the room while speaking. Maybe at some point you're surprised by an unexpected question and stumble over your words while searching for an answer. Or you'll forget to mention how you led an incredible project that tripled sales at your last business. Your nerves disappear when you leave, but you also have no idea how that interview went! The feeling is clearly better than the potentially dangerous heartbeat you had an hour ago, but you don't necessarily feel closer to your dream job or the new career you were looking forward to. You wake up with all the confidence of an army general who not only just read The Art of War, but also saw the entire battle plan of the enemy. You know exactly how the day is going to go for you - you have planned and prepared for this thoroughly. The email you got last night from Big Interview with a Pre-Interview Checklist and last-minute resources gave you an easy night's sleep. Today you are making a huge step towards reaching your full potential. The confidence doesn't just come from knowing exactly what questions the interviewers will ask, and the best ways to answer each - you've also discovered what makes you a star candidate. You know the unique skills and traits you have that will get hiring managers dying to hire you. You feel like a million dollars. The interview itself goes smoothly. After all, you have prepared, practiced, and refined these answers. You have even put yourself through much more stressful situations and difficult questions while exercising. Right now, it all feels easy. You go home with complete confidence that the interview not only went well, you did everything to prepare and show your strengths. You operate at the top of your game. There are 3 main themes that you face running in an interview - whether you're a student vying for that big internship or a C-level executive being considered by a Fortune 500 company. If you focus your preparation to solve just these three challenges, you won't be stopping in any conversation. Here's how to do it: Besides being the most common source of pre-interview anxiety, not knowing what questions to expect can make you stutter or stuck in the main moments of the interview. You'll find our free guide to the top 10 most common interview questions on our blog, but you should also know about questions specific to your experience level, your industry, your job, and key competencies such as teamwork and leadership. (There are thousands of these within Big Interview, complete with insider insights and expert-crafted sample answers). Forget walking on and on or losing your train of thought. You need to think carefully about the best way to answer each question, choose stories that let your skills and accomplishments shine, and give the interviewer everything they're looking for. That's right: stories. The Answer Builder tool in Big Interview will help you find the depths of your memory to tell the right stories, and then you walk step-by-step by scripting these stories in a proven format that captivates interviewers. And of course, our training curriculum gives you all the triggers and competencies you want to make sure to tick off in your answers. Sure, you don't want to be a nervous wreck, but you don't want to be a robot either! If you don't practice your answers, you'll never feel completely satisfied with the interview. Careful and thorough practice is the name of the game if you want to establish your body language and catch all those annoying ums and uns. Big Interview will help you practice for any nuanced situation you might face -prepping you for everything from confronting recruitment managers to unpredictable questions (-or even inappropriate ones to get around!) You don't get our years of research and testing by asking a friend (or a mirror) to be your best friend. A proven system for better interviewing skills. Developed by top interview expert Pamela Skillings, Big Interview combines a full curriculum with a powerful exercise tool to give you everything you need to succeed. I'm sorry; your browser does not support HTML5 video in WebM with VP8/VP9 or MP4 with H.264. Thank you so much for all the help you provided and how you helped me trust in my interview. Again, thanks for everything. You've helped so much! Rick K. (Morgan Stanley) I was interviewed by Amazon 3 times and I prepared for the interviews with Big Interview. I have to say you did a great job, you taught me a simple but a solid framework! I never email companies like this, but this time I forced myself to email you if I got the job at Amazon with a great offer. Aman S. (Amazon) I only had a few days to prepare, but nailed the interview today. I know I have a few more days to cancel, but feel free to charge my account for a month. It was totally worth it. Felt very prepared. Thank you, Pam. But after using Big Interview, it wasn't that scary a process. Overall I was really well prepared- I was even asked the exact questions I had practiced! Jacqueline E. At first, I wasn't sure big interview would be worth my time, but once I started, my feelings changed. Being able to spend time practicing answers and understanding how to improve my skills made me much more confident. Pauline C. I've been looking for a job for five months. I had a lot of problems in the beginning- I didn't know the importance of preparation until I was turned down for a job. I always thought formal education and experience were more than enough. Your simple, simple and effective sample answers certainly helped me in my job interview preparation- I have now achieved my desired role of Financial Accountant, with the salary I wanted! Thank you very much for all your support. Sachin I wanted to let you know that I received a call today from our college president who unofficially offered me the new senior director of operations position. I've been working with and for the president for 21 years, which makes it difficult to make a new impression. But he told me that he was blown away at how well I interviewed and that I made him feel young and energized by my energy and passion for the job. In the end, I had a total of 6 separate interviews for this position. All practice gave me that extra boost of confidence that I needed to go into the interviews knowing that I would be ready for what they asked for. Thank you very much for your expertise and support.
