Photos : Being a striatic better customer can fundamentally lead to all kinds of perks such as being able to get good customer service, solve problems quickly, and find discounts, future sales, and other money savings. Don't rant like a fool when things don't go your way, what's one of the big things you can do to be a better customer? A simple article according to the Wise Bread blog: If a front-line agent does not perform a service to the company by being rude, get his name. Consider recording calls (knowing to get consent; the company will often speak on the lines that record you for educational purposes!). Tag the emails they send. Etc. If it's routinely wrong, create a record. The examples they provide are related to negative experiences, but documenting all interactions is important across the board. I picked a habit of taking notes on all my mother's customer service calls, one that is simple to follow and pays off time and time again. Every phone call to the company at least gets an index card with the date, time, name, what we talked about and additional relevant information from the person I'm talking to. THIS WAY, I SPOKE TO NICK AT 2:30 ON AUGUST 27, AND HE HAS TO EXPLAIN PAST EVENTS WHERE I CAN SAY THAT I APPLIED THE PROMO CODE 0808PHONE TO MY ACCOUNT. If you know what's going on with your customer service representative and you know you're taking notes carefully, you're more likely to get help and a problem. After all, who doesn't love helping someone who has already helped and listened to himself and who has shown willingness. to help himself? G/O Media can get a commission-in nebula solar projector to be a better customer and score yourself better customer service, check out the full article on WiseBread. You have your own tips for becoming a better customer service, or both, we definitely want to hear about it. How to Be the Best Customer [Wisebread] [Wisebread]
