PROJECT RUNWAY PDF, EPUB, EBOOK

DOWNLOAD
FILE
PDF
Adobe

Emma Kowalski | 48 pages | 01 Sep 2010 | Mason Crest Publishers | 9781422216750 | English | Philadelphia, PA, United States

Project Runway |

After the departure of Heidi Klum and Tim Gunn was announced in September , designer Zac Posen released a statement confirming that he too was leaving the show. In October , it was announced that fashion designer Brandon Maxwell and former Teen Vogue editor-in-chief Elaine Welteroth were joining Nina Garcia as permanent judges. On July 4, , the show's producers, The Weinstein Company , announced a five-year deal that would relocate the show to Lifetime , beginning with Season 6. It premiered on the Slice channel in Canada on September NBC announced in May that the show would move back to Bravo as a reboot of the series. Project Runway premiered its first season on December 1, , featuring 12 designers. During this season, Project Runway received critical acclaim, including an Emmy nomination for outstanding competitive reality series.

Growth in audience popularity was also dramatic from its debut to the season finale, making it a sleeper hit. Austin Scarlett won the fan favorite award. Austin Scarlett produced a decoy collection for Fashion Week after being eliminated in the controversial "Nancy O'Dell Grammy Challenge" , causing outrage among fans. His appearance at Fashion Week was an 11th hour decision made by the show's producers who were concerned that the identity of the three finalists would be revealed before the Project Runway Season 1 finale aired. The ploy was later adopted for the show's succeeding seasons. In , Jay McCarroll, in conjunction with Here! Films released the feature-length documentary "Eleven Minutes".

The feature documentary chronicles his year-long post Project Runway journey preparing his first independent runway show for New York's Fashion Week in Bryant Park and the subsequent selling of his line to stores. The second season premiered on December 7, Following a nationwide search earlier in the year, 16 designers were chosen as semi-finalists and brought to New York City in June After the first challenge, called Road to the Runway , fourteen went on to compete as finalists. Chloe Dao won the competition with her model Grace Kelsey. Daniel Vosovic also won the fan favorite award. The third season premiered on July 12, , featuring 15 designers. This season introduced a new set of sponsors, notably Macy's replacing Banana Republic, in advance of Macy's conversion of former May Company department stores. The season finale aired on October 18, Mychael Knight was the first to be eliminated in the season finale for his collection titled "Street Safari".

Knight was a fan favorite, but his line did not appeal to the judges. Laura Bennett was the second eliminated for her collection of cocktail dresses and evening wear, though the judges praised her for how expensive her items looked. During taping, Bennett found out she was pregnant with her sixth child. Jeffrey Sebelia was voted the winner by the judges. Uli Herzner was the runner-up and was also highly praised by the judges for her collection. Sebelia's girlfriend and son were there to celebrate his win with him. There were many dramatic scenes which played out this season. Designer Keith Michael became the first designer to be asked to leave the show for multiple rule violations. He was found to be in possession of prohibited pattern-making books and left the production site for several hours, during which time he used the internet. Sebelia was accused of having outside help to finish his garments by fellow competitor Laura Bennett.

The issue was investigated, and it was declared that he had followed the guidelines. Because he could not produce a receipt for a pair of leather shorts he had sent out for pleating, he removed that item from the show. Also, for the first time, the last four designers were selected as finalists Jeffrey Sebelia , Laura Bennett , Ulrike "Uli" Herzner , and Mychael Knight , with no decoy collection to serve as a distraction before the finale aired, and allowed to compete at New York Fashion Week.

During Season 3, there was a poll consisting of the most memorable moments of Project Runway. Among the most notable were Keith's disqualification, Sebelia's issues with competitor Angela Kesler's mother, and the controversy about Sebelia's final collection. The fourth season premiered on November 14, , featuring 15 designers. This was the first season a designer was compelled to quit the competition for medical reasons. Jack Mackenroth left in Episode 5 and was replaced by Chris March, who had been the most recently eliminated designer. This was also the first season in which four designers were chosen to prepare collections for Fashion Week, but only three proceeded on in the competition to show their collections at Fashion Week.

In a new finale twist, Rami Kashou and Chris March, the bottom 2 of the last challenge, had to show the three best pieces from their collections to the judges. Kathleen "Sweet P. Siriano became the fourth and youngest winner of Project Runway. This was also the first season of the show in which the final three models did not wear the finale pieces of their respective designers. Season 5 had a series poll consisting the 22 most memorable moments of Project Runway. Jillian Lewis was chosen as the winner. This first episode was the first time that they repeated a challenge from a previous season: the Gristedes challenge, in which the designers had to make a design of their choice using what they could find at a grocery store.

The episode, featuring a special guest judge appearance by first season competitor Austin Scarlett, was intended as an homage to the glories of past seasons, the fifth season being the last on Bravo and by original producers Magical Elves. Similar to season 4, four designers were chosen to prepare collections for Fashion Week, but only three proceeded on in the competition to show their collections at Fashion Week. However, unlike the previous season, the last challenge does not have a bearing on this decision and any of the four remaining designers could be eliminated before fashion week.

For the first time, six people showed collections for Fashion Week. Joe Faris and Stephen "Suede" Baum , the last two designers eliminated, and Jerell Scott, who was eliminated in the first part of the finale, showed decoy collections. All three collections were well received. Kenley was praised for her well-tailored designs, but was eliminated first because some of her designs were reminiscent of other professional designers' collections. The judges admired Korto's ethnic touches on her designs, but thought that a few were overworked. Leanne was declared the winner for her wave patterns. Jennifer Lopez was supposed to be the guest judge in the finale, but bowed out at the last minute, so Tim Gunn took her place. For the first time since Season 1, there was no reunion or opening introduction due to time restraints. However, Bravo continued to stage the fan favorite contest, with Momulu winning.

Season six premiered on August 20, , featuring 16 designers. The sixth season had been announced to begin airing in January on Lifetime, but was delayed due to legal issues. The announcement occurred before NBC Universal sought preliminary injunctive action effectively enjoining production. For the first time in Project Runway history, only three contestants showed their collections at New York Fashion Week. The three finalists of the sixth season showed their collections at Bryant Park on February 20, , but the finalists were not named and did not appear onstage that day. Irina Shabayeva won the competition with her model Kalyn Hemphill. This was the second season overall and the second consecutive season where all three finalists were female. Christopher Straub won the Fan Favorite Award. The seventh season premiered on January 14, , featuring 16 designers. This was the first season a designer was compelled to quit the competition for personal reasons.

Maya Luz, who left the competition unexpectedly in Episode 11 after deciding that she did not have enough experience to "go all the way", was replaced by Anthony Williams, who had been the most recently eliminated designer. In a finale twist, Mila Hermanovski and Jay Nicolas Sario, the bottom 2 of the last challenge, had to show the three best pieces from their collections to the judges. For the first time, ten designers showed collections for Fashion Week. The final 11 designers except Maya Luz all showed decoy collections. Seth Aaron Henderson won the competition with his model Kristina Sajko. Maya Luz won the fan favorite award. This season featured 17 competing designers, the most in the show's history. This season featured the longest winner deliberation in Project Runway history. In the end, Jones won the competition with her model Millana Snow. After the show, Tim Gunn publicly aired his disappointment in Kors' and Garcia's choice for the winner.

Mondo Guerra also won the fan favorite award. The ninth premiered on July 28, , featuring 20 designers. For the first time since season 3, four designers were chosen to show their collections at Fashion Week. Anya Ayoung-Chee won the competition with her model Sveta Glebova. Jones placed third and Kimberly Goldson and her model Bojana Draskovic placed fourth. Anya also won the fan favorite award. The tenth season premiered on July 19, , featuring 16 designers. Celebrating the show's tenth season milestone, this season launched with a fashion show in front of a live audience. This season featured the first time two designers quit on the same season.

Andrea Katz and Kooan Kosuke both quit on Episode 3 due to personal reasons. Dmitry Sholokhov won the competition with his model Katt Vogel. Elena Slivnyak won the fan favorite award. The eleventh season premiered on January 24, , featuring 16 designers. Zac Posen replaced Michael Kors as one of the main judges due to the latter's scheduling conflicts.

Dubbed as "Teams Edition", the designers had to work in teams for every challenge this season. Michelle Lesniak Franklin won the competition with her model Lisa Jackson. Originally, Michelle would have been eliminated in Episode 11, but the judges gave her a second chance. The twelfth season premiered on July 18, , featuring 15 new designers and 1 returning designer as voted by the public. Five designers were chosen to prepare collections for Fashion Week, but only three were supposed to proceed on in the competition to show their collections at Fashion Week. Alexandria von Bromssen, Justin LeBlanc and Helen Castillo , the bottom 3 of the last challenge, had to show the three best pieces from their collections to the judges. In a final twist, both von Bromssen and LeBlanc were chosen to show their collections at Fashion Week , making this the fourth time four people were competing in the finale.

Dom Streater won the competition with her model Rayuana Aleyce. Originally, Justin would have been eliminated in Episode 6, but he was given a second chance due to the newly instituted "Tim Gunn Save". The thirteenth season premiered on July 24, , featuring 18 new designers and 1 returning designer as voted by the public.

Amanda Valentine from Season 11 won the public voting for the 19th spot to compete once again over Alexander Pope and Ken Laurence of Season Sean Kelly won the competition. Originally, Char would have been eliminated in Episode 6, but she was given a second chance and returned to the show by Tim Gunn who used his "Tim Gunn Save". The fourteenth season premiered on August 6, Tim Gunn returns for his 14th season as a mentor. Ashley Nell Tipton won the competition. Originally, Edmond would have been eliminated in Episode 12, but he was given a second chance and returned to the show by Tim Gunn who used his "Tim Gunn Save". The fifteenth season premiered September 15, Tim Gunn returns for his 15th season as a mentor.

The winner was Erin Robertson. Roberi Parra was the runner-up, with Laurence Basse and Rik Villa coming in third and fourth place respectively. The sixteenth season premiered on August 17, Tim Gunn returned for his 16th season as mentor. Originally Margarita would have been eliminated in episode 11 but was spared elimination and brought back into the competition by Tim Gunn.

This season also had a designer eliminated due to cheating. Claire Buitendorp was eliminated in Episode 9 after it was revealed that she had taken a measuring tape back to the apartment to measure her own clothing. Her disqualification came after winning the challenge from episode 8. The win was rescinded and awarded to another designer. The seventeenth season premiered on March 14, Several changes have been made to the show, along with its return to Bravo. Nina Garcia stayed on as a judge, joined by fashion designer Brandon Maxwell , and former editor-in-chief of Teen Vogue Elaine Welteroth. The eighteenth season premiered on December 5, Unlike in season 17, mentor Siriano now has the option to use a one-time "Siriano Save" to bring back a contestant from elimination if he disagrees with a judging decision.

On February 27, , the casting of Season 19 opened. The nineteenth season is set to premiere on October 14, , will featuring 16 desingers. Siriano would be returning as mentor with Garcia, Maxwell and Welteroth also returning as judges. Kloss would not be returning as host for the season, but will appear occasionally throughout the season. The first four episodes featured head-to-head match ups, the winner earning a spot in the finale, where the winner of the finale will win the grand prize. The show ran for seven seasons. Angela Lindvall and Carolyn Murphy have each hosted one season, and the last five seasons were hosted by Alyssa Milano. As on the regular Project Runway, the designers are judged by the host, two permanent judges and 1—2 guest judges. Joanna Coles mentored the designers in the first two seasons, Zanna Roberts Rassi mentored in season three to season five, and Anne Fulenwider mentored the last two seasons. The mentors must show they have the business savvy to manage their team of four designers, or else leave the show themselves.

Project Accessory aired directly after the season finale of Project Runway season 9, premiering on October 27, The show featured 12 contestants who participated in challenges to design and display the most amazing accessories. Kelly Osbourne and Debra Messing were among the guest judges appearing this past season. Project Runway: Threads aired directly after the season finale of Project Runway Season 13, premiering on October 23, After Show S18 E7. After Show S18 E6. Ashley Longshore Comes to Project Runway! Unseen Judges' Critiques: Episode 6. Unseen Judges' Critiques: Episode 5. After Show S18 E5. Unseen Judges' Critiques: Episode 4. After Show S18 E4. Karla Welch Comes to Project Runway! After Show S18 E3. Sabotage in the Project Runway Work Room? Unseen Judges' Critiques: Episode 3. Alan Gonzalez: "That's a Lot of Boob". After Show S18 E2. Unseen Judges' Critiques: Episode 2. Christian Siriano's Fashion Flashback. After Show S18 E1.

Unseen Judges' Critiques: Episode 1. Project Runway is Rocked by a Medical Emergency. Project Runway Heads to Space! The Winner of Project Runway Season 17 is…. Project Runway After Show. We and our partners use cookies on this site to improve our service, perform analytics, personalize advertising, measure advertising performance, and remember website preferences.

Project Runway - Wikipedia

The webinars featured other leaders in the fashion industry. Jeffrey Sebelia seemed to play the villain throughout the season, making the fact that he won unpalatable to many fans. However, there is no denying his designs impressed the judges. After "Project Runway," he told New York Magazine in that he got a gig designing the costumes for the "Bratz" live-action movie. In the interview, he called the dolls "slutty" and, according to LA Weekly, this comment cost him the job. In , he was named head designer of the LA-based clothing brand Fluxus, but he eventually left that position to pursue creating a line of children's clothing called La Miniatura.

Sebelia took a break from La Miniatura in to participate on the third season of "Project Runway: All Stars" — on which he placed seventh out of 11 contestants. According to his website , Sebelia has also worked with clothing companies like Guess and Urban Outfitters. Easily the most successful "Project Runway" alum, Christian Siriano was 21 when he first joined the show and wowed the judges with his designs. Since winning the competition, Siriano established his namesake line, Christian Siriano , and has continued to impress at New York Fashion Week since In , he opened his first boutique in New York, and, in , he became a member of the Council of Fashion Designers of America — a prestigious organization that strengthens the impact of designers. He has served as a judge on "Project Runway Junior," and he took over Tim Gunn's role as mentor for seasons 17 and 18 of "Project Runway.

Season five delivered yet another commercially-successful winner in the form of Leanne Marshall. In , Marshall launched her signature bridal line, and she's since become highly-recognized for those gowns as well as her ready-to-wear designs. She even designed her own wedding gown — as well as her maid of honor's dress — for her own elopement in Irina Shabayeva's armor-inspired designs for her final "Project Runway" show were undeniably winners.

Since winning season six of "Project Runway," Shabayeva has focused on her eponymous brand and has shown at several fashion weeks around the world. She was also second runner-up on the recent seventh season in After his success within the "Project Runway" franchise, Henderson focused on sustainable fashion, working with brands such as Earthtec and SolarWorld. He's known for using organic fabrics and plastic bottles in his fashion lines, and in , he partnered with the brand Feetz to release a line of 3D-printed shoes. In , Henderson was named lead designer for Fin Fun , an Idaho-based brand that sells mermaid tails and swimwear.

Henderson also recently competed on season seven of "Project Runway: All Stars" in , but he went home early on and came in 13th place. Today, Jones has largely shifted her career from designing to consulting. Anya Ayoung-Chee's season nine victory is quite a dramatic story. She had only taken up sewing four months before the competition and had no garments constructed when Gunn visited her home before the finale.

After winning the ninth season of "Project Runway," Ayoung-Chee created a resort-wear clothing line. Ayoung-Chee appeared as a mentor on the "Project Runway" spin-off series "Under the Gunn" back in The designer also competed on season seven of "Project Runway: All Stars" in and came in 10th place. Dmitry Sholokhov was another double winner, beating out the competition on both "Project Runway" and "Project Runway: All Stars" season four.

After his wins, Sholokhov dedicated himself to his own line, which works mostly on private commissions. After winning season 10 of "Project Runway" and season four of "Project Runway: All Stars," the designer came in second place on the seventh season of "All Stars. In , he tied with designer Sue Wong for fashion designer of the year at the Metropolitan Fashion Awards. After nearly being cut from the show early on, Michelle Lesniak was named the champion of season After winning her season, and a brief stint on "Project Runway: All Stars" season four, Lesniak returned to her hometown of Portland, Oregon , where she's currently designing for her own boutique. Lesniak returned to "Project Runway: All Stars" in for season seven and took home the big prize. Dom Streater stole the show with her graphic prints that easily secured her spot as the winner of season Streater is currently working in Philadelphia and, according to a interview with The News and Observer, she considers herself a slow-fashion designer.

Her label offers limited-edition T-shirts, scarves, and jackets for sale, as well as abstract paintings. After wowing audiences with a dress that went from white to multicolored under the runway's rain, New Zealander Sean Kelly won the whole competition on season Post-"Project Runway," Kelly is still living and designing in New York, primarily for Hercules , a men's luxury swimwear brand.

Ashley Nell Tipton stood out on "Project Runway" for teaming up with plus-size models and producing eye-catching designs. After her "Project Runway" win, Tipton signed a contract with JCPenney to design and be the face of their plus-size boutique. She has also designed for Simplicity, K and M Accessories, and has launched her own clothing and eyewear lines. In September, Tipton announced on her YouTube channel that she was going to stop designing. With her banana-print looks and silver coats, Erin Robertson took home the winning title on season 15 of "Project Runway.

Since then, she's returned to Boston where she continues to design and do other creative work. Kentaro Kameyama claimed the title of season 16 winner, and the designer has been busy working since the end of the show. He's already shown collections at LA, Paris, New York Fashion Weeks, and the ready-to-wear pieces are available for purchase on his website. Outside of fashion, Kameyama is a classical pianist and composer. Jhoan "Sebastian" Grey wowed the judges with his high-end style on season 17 of "Project Runway. It hasn't been long since Grey took home the winning title, but earlier this year he got to debut his "Lineage" collection in collaboration with the Fashion for a Cause Foundation at New York Fashion Week. Geoffrey Mac was a fan-favorite on season 18, so it's no surprise that he took home the big prize. Mac is the most recent winner from the season, so not much has happened since his season ended. World globe An icon of the world globe, indicating different international options.

Get the Insider App. Click here to learn more. Karlie Kloss and Christian Siriano guide undiscovered designers through the harrowing rites of fashion. Most Recent Project Runway - Season Karlie Kloss is 'excited to still be involved' in Project Runway as she steps back as full-time host A source close to the new mom and entrepreneur tells PEOPLE she has "a lot on her plate" but "can't wait" to be a part of the new season as a guest. Karlie Kloss screen grab. Karlie Kloss responds to Project Runway 's 'dinner with the Kushners' moment "I voted as a democrat in and I plan to do the same in Project Runway contestant who shaded Karlie Kloss releases shirts featuring Kushner quip. Project Runway screen grab. Project Runway contestant calls out Karlie Kloss' connection to Kushner family Watch a video of the shocking moment. Project Runway. Project Runway season 18 exclusive first look: Meet the new designers, celebrity guests Leslie Jones, Kiernan Shipka, more The Bravo show's next season includes trans and nonbinary models, plus the oldest designer ever to compete on the series.

Chris March.

Shop Bravo's Project Runway | Nineteenth Amendment

Project Runway has tapped supermodel and entrepreneur Karlie Kloss as the host along with former Project Runway champion and celebrated CFDA fashion designer Christian Siriano as the mentor for the newly rebooted Emmy Award-winning franchise. Kloss will also serve as executive producer. Project Runway. Season 18 Season 18 Season The Project Runway Season 18 Winner is After Show S18 E Unseen Judges' Critiques: Episode Serena Williams Comes to Project Runway! Project Runway Goes Avant Garde! Project Runway Embarks on a Fashion First. Project Runway Is Going to the Olympics! After Show S18 E9. Project Runway Heads Back to the '60s. Is Geoffrey Mac Reinventing Camo? Unseen Judges' Critiques: Episode 9. Leslie Jones Comes to Project Runway. After Show S18 E8. Unseen Judges' Critiques: Episode 8. Can Project Runway Reinvent the Tuxedo?

Dayoung Kim Collapses Backstage. Unseen Judges' Critiques: Episode 7. After Show S18 E7. After Show S18 E6. In , he was named head designer of the LA-based clothing brand Fluxus, but he eventually left that position to pursue creating a line of children's clothing called La Miniatura. Sebelia took a break from La Miniatura in to participate on the third season of "Project Runway: All Stars" — on which he placed seventh out of 11 contestants. According to his website , Sebelia has also worked with clothing companies like Guess and Urban Outfitters. Easily the most successful "Project Runway" alum, Christian Siriano was 21 when he first joined the show and wowed the judges with his designs.

Since winning the competition, Siriano established his namesake line, Christian Siriano , and has continued to impress at New York Fashion Week since In , he opened his first boutique in New York, and, in , he became a member of the Council of Fashion Designers of America — a prestigious organization that strengthens the impact of designers. He has served as a judge on "Project Runway Junior," and he took over Tim Gunn's role as mentor for seasons 17 and 18 of "Project Runway. Season five delivered yet another commercially-successful winner in the form of Leanne Marshall. In , Marshall launched her signature bridal line, and she's since become highly-recognized for those gowns as well as her ready-to-wear designs. She even designed her own wedding gown — as well as her maid of honor's dress — for her own elopement in Irina Shabayeva's armor-inspired designs for her final "Project Runway" show were undeniably winners.

Since winning season six of "Project Runway," Shabayeva has focused on her eponymous brand and has shown at several fashion weeks around the world. She was also second runner-up on the recent seventh season in After his success within the "Project Runway" franchise, Henderson focused on sustainable fashion, working with brands such as Earthtec and SolarWorld. He's known for using organic fabrics and plastic bottles in his fashion lines, and in , he partnered with the brand Feetz to release a line of 3D-printed shoes. In , Henderson was named lead designer for Fin Fun , an Idaho-based brand that sells mermaid tails and swimwear. Henderson also recently competed on season seven of "Project Runway: All Stars" in , but he went home early on and came in 13th place. Today, Jones has largely shifted her career from designing to consulting.

Anya Ayoung-Chee's season nine victory is quite a dramatic story. She had only taken up sewing four months before the competition and had no garments constructed when Gunn visited her home before the finale. After winning the ninth season of "Project Runway," Ayoung-Chee created a resort-wear clothing line. Ayoung-Chee appeared as a mentor on the "Project Runway" spin-off series "Under the Gunn" back in The designer also competed on season seven of "Project Runway: All Stars" in and came in 10th place. Dmitry Sholokhov was another double winner, beating out the competition on both "Project Runway" and "Project Runway: All Stars" season four. After his wins, Sholokhov dedicated himself to his own line, which works mostly on private commissions. After winning season 10 of "Project Runway" and season four of "Project Runway: All Stars," the designer came in second place on the seventh season of "All Stars.

In , he tied with designer Sue Wong for fashion designer of the year at the Metropolitan Fashion Awards. After nearly being cut from the show early on, Michelle Lesniak was named the champion of season After winning her season, and a brief stint on "Project Runway: All Stars" season four, Lesniak returned to her hometown of Portland, Oregon , where she's currently designing for her own boutique. Lesniak returned to "Project Runway: All Stars" in for season seven and took home the big prize. Dom Streater stole the show with her graphic prints that easily secured her spot as the winner of season Streater is currently working in Philadelphia and, according to a interview with The News and Observer, she considers herself a slow-fashion designer.

Her label offers limited-edition T-shirts, scarves, and jackets for sale, as well as abstract paintings. After wowing audiences with a dress that went from white to multicolored under the runway's rain, New Zealander Sean Kelly won the whole competition on season Post-"Project Runway," Kelly is still living and designing in New York, primarily for Hercules , a men's luxury swimwear brand. Ashley Nell Tipton stood out on "Project Runway" for teaming up with plus-size models and producing eye-catching designs. After her "Project Runway" win, Tipton signed a contract with JCPenney to design and be the face of their plus-size boutique. She has also designed for Simplicity, K and M Accessories, and has launched her own clothing and eyewear lines. In September, Tipton announced on her YouTube channel that she was going to stop designing.

With her banana-print looks and silver coats, Erin Robertson took home the winning title on season 15 of "Project Runway. Since then, she's returned to Boston where she continues to design and do other creative work. Kentaro Kameyama claimed the title of season 16 winner, and the designer has been busy working since the end of the show. He's already shown collections at LA, Paris, New York Fashion Weeks, and the ready-to-wear pieces are available for purchase on his website. Outside of fashion, Kameyama is a classical pianist and composer. Jhoan "Sebastian" Grey wowed the judges with his high-end style on season 17 of "Project Runway. It hasn't been long since Grey took home the winning title, but earlier this year he got to debut his "Lineage" collection in collaboration with the Fashion for a Cause Foundation at New York

Fashion Week.

Geoffrey Mac was a fan-favorite on season 18, so it's no surprise that he took home the big prize. Mac is the most recent winner from the season, so not much has happened since his season ended. World globe An icon of the world globe, indicating different international options. Get the Insider App. Click here to learn more. A leading-edge research firm focused on digital transformation. Sam Gutierrez.

On "Project Runway," fashion designers compete against each other for a grand prize. Some past winners, like Christian Siriano and Leanne Marshall, have gone on to create successful brands that have dressed celebrities. Other winners, like Gretchen Jones, have expanded their careers beyond designing.

Project Runway | Bravo TV Official Site

See Chris' history of medical struggles. Fashion designer, who appeared on Season 4 of the competition series, publicly detailed his health battles. Bravo's Project Runway declares a winner on Thursday, July 13, and we've got opinions. The stars of your favorite Bravo series are coming together for a weekend of fun. Get a sneak peek of the designer at work as the reality show's new mentor. August 26, April 7, March 20, Who Won Project Runway Season 18? March 13, February 11, January 25, January 17, December 4, December 3, December 1, September 6, Project Runway 's Chris March Dead at 56 Fashion designer, who appeared on Season 4 of the competition series, publicly detailed his health battles. Who Won Project Runway Season 17? June 13, Most Recent Project Runway - Season Karlie Kloss is 'excited to still be involved' in Project Runway as she steps back as full-time host A source close to the new mom and entrepreneur tells PEOPLE she has "a lot on her plate" but "can't wait" to be a part of the new season as a guest.

Karlie Kloss screen grab. Karlie Kloss responds to Project Runway 's 'dinner with the Kushners' moment "I voted as a democrat in and I plan to do the same in Project Runway contestant who shaded Karlie Kloss releases shirts featuring Kushner quip. Project Runway screen grab. Project Runway contestant calls out Karlie Kloss' connection to Kushner family Watch a video of the shocking moment. Project Runway. Project Runway season 18 exclusive first look: Meet the new designers, celebrity guests Leslie Jones, Kiernan Shipka, more The Bravo show's next season includes trans and nonbinary models, plus the oldest designer ever to compete on the series. Chris March. Project Runway alum Chris March dies at

Wicked Adirondacks download pdf